It's always better to do it from the scratch, at my end it was never expected it would work with my EFI.

Having said that, such a sudden reboot indicates there might be something set wrong in your BIOS. Unusual but it works here

- Intel SGX Control is set to "Software Controlled" instead "Disabled"
- Secure Boot is Enabled
- Secure Boot Status says Disabled

This is not rocket science just follow any guide covering any other laptop with your CPU and simply create and use your own configuration files.
