I don't know what kind of software you use to edit video but if it was davinci resolve I would recommend a 6900/6950xt

I don't even know the power of your CPU so on I don't know if you would take full advantage of it without bottlenecks

My experience is that with a proper system OSX is the best solution for davinci resolve

I have personally used a Nvidia 3090 with windows /Cuda, getting worse results than with a 6900xt in an OSX with the same software

That's why I would advise you to get an AMD card calibrated for your CPU power and wait until Hackintosh dies for good to make other "more complex" choices 😊
